

Keane McDonald is pleased to partner with the Irish Hospital Consultants Association (IHCA) in an exclusive search for a new Associate for its Member Services function.

The IHCA represents the majority of hospital consultants in the Irish health service and is the only representative association that speaks solely for Hospital Consultants. This is an exciting time to join as the organisation emerges from a period of transition, with a newly appointed CEO and a renewed commitment to provide high quality, professional representation to its growing membership base.

Key responsibilities:

- Report to senior management and work closely with the CEO
- Provide advice, advocacy and representation to hospital consultants within the health sector
- Cross functional participation in ongoing campaigns to deliver improvements and positive change in Ireland's health system
- This is a key appointment in a small team which means significant engagement with senior executive colleagues and playing a central role in the organisation

The ideal person:

- Graduate degree or equivalent, ideally in law, business, human resources or a health-related area
- Experience in employment law or employee relations/industrial relations or human resources
- Strong negotiation and superb communication skills
- Knowledge of the public sector and/or health industry an advantage, including the private health sector and private health insurance market
- Exposure within a membership association or not for profit is desirable but not essential

An excellent package plus hybrid working is offered.

Interested applicants should contact Mared Roberts on 087 4492241 or email your CV in strict confidence to mroberts@keanemcdonald.com

Absolute discretion is assured.

All direct applications will be forwarded to Keane McDonald for vetting.

Keane McDonald and IHCA support diversity and inclusion.
